Secretary's Overview

Priyanka Sinha, Director, Chotanagpur Kalyan Niketan

I am delighted to share a review of the activities undertaken by Chotanagpur Kalyan Niketan during the year 2025–26. Since 2008, we have been actively working in Jharkhand, particularly in the Simdega and Gumla districts.

Our efforts continue to focus on collaborating with local organisations in key geographical areas, prioritising the needs of women, adolescent girls and children. Our initiatives address critical issues related to child rights, human rights, gender-based violence, gender equality, mental health, physical health, and safe migration and legal aid. We also engage in evidence-based practice and research to uncover facts on the ground, and we carry out ongoing monitoring and evaluation to strengthen social development and service linkages.

Our mission remains to make services accessible and affordable for the most marginalised tribal communities, ensuring their holistic well-being and empowerment.

I want to express my heartfelt thanks to all our Board members, staff, and funder agencies who have stood by us through these challenging times. Your hands-on support and unwavering encouragement mean a great deal. I am also grateful to our partners for the continued opportunity to collaborate in our shared mission to improve the well-being of children, women, adolescent girls and communities. Special congratulations to the entire team of Chotanagpur Kalyan Niketan for their incredible dedication and resilience. Despite the challenges of working from the field and from home under unusual circumstances, you have continued to give your best.

“A violence-free and fearless community for marginalised groups, including tribal children, women, the ultra-poor, and other socially excluded communities.”

Strengthened Feminist Movement

SUPPORTED BY: WOMEN FUND ASIA

Empowered Panchayat and Safe Women · Simdega district: 1 block, 2 panchayats, 14 villages

During 2025–26, the project made significant progress in strengthening grassroots governance and promoting gender equality across 14 villages. A total of 4,526 participants were reached, comprising 3,460 women and 1,066 men, reflecting strong engagement from women and community stakeholders on critical social issues.

The project facilitated discussions on domestic violence, gender-based violence, child marriage, child labour, child sexual abuse, child trafficking, menstrual hygiene, digital violence, cybercrime, safe migration, child protection and social justice, with emphasis on Gram Sabha empowerment, equality, and the ‘Break the Silence, Stop the Violence’ campaign.

To strengthen coordination and institutional support, the team held one-on-one meetings with Panchayat representatives and with block- and district-level stakeholders. Women's meetings raised awareness of domestic violence, protection mechanisms and the toll-free helpline 1800-569-1972. Women were also sensitised on personal safety and accessing help in situations of violence, using role-play and participatory activities to surface issues around mental health.

Adolescent girls' meetings (Kishori Meetings) focused on preventing early child marriage, personal safety, menstrual hygiene and government schemes, while community and Gram Sabha meetings reinforced understanding of local governance and the role of women representatives in decision-making. Coordination across Panchayat and block-level bodies linked violence prevention to support services such as One Stop Centres, DLSA, JHALSA, ASHAs, Self-Help Groups, the police, and the offices of the Deputy Commissioner and Block Development Officer.

Wall-writing was used as an innovative awareness strategy, spreading messages on violence prevention and helpline services across villages and building a sense of community ownership, particularly among women Panchayat representatives. During the year, 45 cases involving mental health issues, domestic violence, gender-based violence, and economic or physical abuse were identified and supported; survivors received counselling and legal aid and were referred to Protection Officers, legal counsel and Women's Police Stations.

Capacity building remained a key focus, with training on leadership, rights awareness and self-confidence delivered through presentations, group discussions and role play. District-level interface meetings gave women leaders the opportunity to engage directly with officials and strengthen their advocacy. Special awareness days observed included World Environment Day, World Day Against Child Labour, World Anti-Trafficking Day, Mental Health Day and the International Day of the Girl Child.

Impact and Achievements

The project increased participation of women and adolescent girls in the Gram Sabha, improved reporting and identification of violence cases, and strengthened the leadership of women Panchayat representatives. Women's confidence has grown, and community awareness has improved significantly, contributing to a safer, more inclusive and gender-sensitive environment.

Safeguarding Child Rights and Protection

SUPPORTED BY: THE KAILASH SATYARTHI CHILDREN'S FOUNDATION OF AMERICA INC.

Access to Justice · Bansjor and Bolba blocks: 33 panchayats, 150 villages

The Access to Justice project was implemented across the Bansjor and Bolba blocks, reaching 33 panchayats and 150 villages. It aims to strengthen community awareness, promote legal literacy, and protect children and vulnerable groups from child marriage, child labour, sexual abuse and trafficking.

During the year, 234 community meetings reached 12,348 participants (7,697 women and 4,651 men), reflecting strong grassroots engagement and a positive shift toward inclusive, gender-balanced dialogue on sensitive issues.

A key achievement was the 96 pledge events held between May 2025 and March 2026, in which 6,160 people, including students at 32 school events, took a collective oath to prevent child marriage and uphold children's rights. The project also strengthened access to government welfare schemes, linking 5,010 families to social security, financial assistance and essential services.

Recognising the influence of religious institutions, the project engaged faith leaders directly. Child Marriage Prohibition information boards were installed at 50 religious sites, and 39 religious leaders took a formal pledge to speak out against harmful practices, lending credibility and reach to the campaign.

Preventing Child Marriage: The Numbers

521 Child marriage cases responded to, April 2025 to March 2026	449 Cases recorded as stopped	519 Undertakings signed by parents and guardians
62 Cases handled through legal intervention	2 Orders obtained from the Child Welfare Committee	148 Villages where cases were responded to

Of the 521 cases, 65 were handled in April and May 2025 and 456 between June 2025 and March 2026. Cases were recorded mainly in Thethaitangar (211), Bansjor (149) and Bolba (143) blocks, with a few in Simdega. Most were resolved through community persuasion, with a written undertaking from the parents or guardians, and the cases that needed it went through legal intervention. Ten cases could not be stopped.

Rebuild India Initiative

SUPPORTED BY: DASRA (REBUILD INDIA FUND)

Flexible fund for organisation development and re-enrolment of dropout children · Simdega district: 2 blocks, 6 panchayats, 31 villages

The Rebuild India Initiative is a flexible fund from Dasra. CKN uses it for organisation development, strengthening its systems, team and institutional capacity, and for the re-enrolment of children who have dropped out of school.

Through this support, CKN worked across 31 villages in 6 panchayats within 2 blocks of Simdega district, engaging 98 key stakeholders to strengthen education, child rights and gender equality.

The project focused on the Right to Education, bringing out-of-school children back into mainstream education, and raising awareness on gender-based violence, domestic violence, human trafficking, child marriage and the Right to Education.

Coaching through the National Institute of Open Schooling (NIOS) was provided to 45 adolescent girls who had previously dropped out of school; 25 have since been re-enrolled. Thirteen Kishori Mandals (Adolescent Girls' Groups) were formed, reaching 259 participants with training on leadership and rights.

Community engagement included 4 women's meetings (37 participants), 5 general community meetings (142 participants: 47 men, 95 women), 9 Child Welfare and Protection Committee meetings (341 participants: 160 men, 181 women), and 17 Gram Sabha meetings (417 participants: 138 men, 279 women) covering education, child rights, child marriage prevention and gender-based violence.

Street plays were staged across eight villages on child marriage, gender-based violence and the value of quality education. Personalised counselling reached 19 participants in coordination meetings with girls and parents, plus a further 43 participants across 14 sessions.

A door-to-door survey reached 438 households and 2,134 participants (932 men, 1,202 women), building an accurate picture of ground realities and informing more effective scheme delivery. The team also spoke directly with school dropouts, both boys and girls, to understand their reasons for staying out of school.

Thirty-three beneficiaries were enrolled for Ayushman Cards, and awareness of rights and duties was raised through events marking National Girl Child Day, the International Day of the Girl Child, World Mental Health Day and Constitution Day. Regular home visits helped sustain girls' education and build their confidence and participation.

Overall, the initiative has proven an effective driver of positive change, education and girls' empowerment in the community.

India Rural Uplifting Initiative

SUPPORTED BY: JIV DAYA FOUNDATION

Pre-School Nutrition and Education · Thethaitangar block, Simdega: 2 panchayats, 4 Anganwadi centres

In collaboration with the Jiv Daya Foundation, CKN launched an initiative to secure a better future for children across two panchayats and four Anganwadi centres in Thethaitangar block, Simdega district, addressing the health, nutrition and education needs of children aged 3 to 6.

With malnutrition a serious concern in rural areas, the programme focused on children facing moderate to severe malnutrition, aiming not only to meet immediate nutritional needs but to build a foundation for lasting health.

The ‘Milk and Biscuit Programme’ provided 100 children with milk and biscuits daily, a simple intervention that led to gradual, visible improvements in health. Alongside nutrition, pre-education kits were distributed to children aged 3 to 5 and primary education kits to those aged 5 to 6. Play-based learning and recreational activities encouraged good habits, while lessons on hygiene and sanitation improved both health and behaviour.

The initiative also engaged parents directly: relief kits (rations) were provided to 50 families to support balanced, hygienic meals at home, and monthly meetings with parents covered maternal care, child health and nutrition.

Through this partnership with the Jiv Daya Foundation, children received not just nutrition but a strong foundation for learning, growth and healthy living: a step toward a future where every child has the chance to thrive.

Strengthened Local Governance

SUPPORTED BY: AZIM PREMJI FOUNDATION

Thethaitangar block, Simdega: 3 Gram Panchayats, 7 villages

In collaboration with the Azim Premji Foundation, CKN launched an initiative to strengthen local governance in Thethaitangar block, Simdega district, covering 3 Gram Panchayats and 7 villages. Gram Panchayats and local institutions play a central role in delivering government schemes and community support, and the programme trained Panchayat members, women leaders, teachers and youth on planning, education and child welfare.

Awareness campaigns helped residents understand the significance of Gram Sabha meetings, community participation, and government schemes and social services, while regular meetings and capacity-building empowered Gram Panchayat officials to raise local issues more effectively before government authorities.

A major achievement was the greater decision-making autonomy of Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs), which began addressing local issues more independently and giving greater weight to residents' participation. Frontline workers' leadership was also strengthened, enabling a larger role in child protection, mental health, addressing child sexual abuse and domestic violence, community development, and access to essential services.

A further 2,663 individuals were linked to social security schemes and services, including Ayushman Cards, Old Age Pensions, PDS, E-Shram Labour Cards, Aadhaar updates, birth certificates, the Sarwajan Pension Yojana, caste certificates, Widow Pensions, the Mukhyamantri Fasal Bima Yojana, residential certificates and scholarship schemes.

Overall, the programme has fostered community participation, empowered local leaders and priests, and improved people's access to government social security schemes.

Jharkhand Anti-Trafficking Network (JATN)

SUPPORTED BY: GLOBAL FUND FOR WOMEN (USA), THROUGH THE JHARKHAND ANTI-TRAFFICKING NETWORK (JATN)

Empowering and Rights for Women Domestic Workers · Gumla district: 2 blocks, 2 panchayats, 10 villages

The Jharkhand Anti-Trafficking Network (JATN) is a network that has partnered with the Global Fund for Women to work with domestic workers. As a member of JATN, CKN worked in Gumla district across 2 blocks, 2 panchayats and 10 villages, focused on protecting the rights of female domestic workers.

Female domestic workers in rural areas often face low wages, long hours, unsafe conditions, and physical and mental harassment. In response, the project organised regular village-level meetings to inform women of their basic labour rights, dignified working conditions and legal protections, while Panchayat- and block-level meetings gave these issues a broader platform and fostered community dialogue and local leadership involvement. Quarterly meetings reviewed progress and implemented corrective measures.

A district-level workshop brought together administrative officials, legal experts and elected representatives, placing the concerns of domestic workers firmly on the policy and administrative agenda. Women were sensitised on their rights, building self-confidence and the capacity to speak up, and many were linked to social security schemes such as pensions and ration cards, improving their economic security.

Overall, the initiative was a significant step toward sustainable change in the lives of women domestic workers, raising awareness while inspiring women to organise in defence of their rights.

16 Days of Activism

SUPPORTED BY: IBTIDA, CREA (CREATING RESOURCES FOR EMPOWERMENT AND ACTION)

Simdega district · 25 November – 10 December 2025

CKN organised a 16 Days of Activism campaign in Simdega district in collaboration with CREA (IBTIDA Network), under the theme 'From Inequality to Equality: Everyone Counts Equally', to raise awareness against gender-based violence and strengthen the spirit of equality in the community.

The campaign reached 283 participants: 35 women, 210 adolescent girls and young women, 7 women with disabilities, 19 men and 12 sex workers, reflecting an inclusive approach that gave every section of society a platform. Workshops at block and school level shared information on gender-based violence, rights and safety, and adolescent girls and young women openly shared personal experiences, fostering an atmosphere of safe and trusting dialogue.

A significant and unexpected finding was that cybercrime in the district was far more prevalent than previously estimated. Many adolescent girls and women came forward with their experiences, showing the problem was widespread yet often hidden, and encouraging others to seek help rather than stay silent. The initiative also surprised government officials and Panchayat representatives, leading to stronger coordination among the police, Panchayat representatives, teachers, CDPOs, DCPOs and other community members.

Key learnings included the seriousness of cybercrime, its various forms, and the need to keep raising awareness of it. Challenges included higher-than-expected turnout at the school level and limited official availability at the block level during the concurrent ‘Sarkar Aapke Dwar’ (Government at Your Doorstep) programme.

Overall, the campaign strengthened dialogue, self-confidence and collective action in the community, and CKN has since developed a concrete action plan on cybersecurity and the prevention of gender-based violence.

Rural Creche Initiative

SUPPORTED BY: AZIM PREMJI PHILANTHROPIC INITIATIVES PRIVATE LIMITED (AZIM PREMJI FOUNDATION)

Shishu Ghar · Simdega Sadar block · Reporting period: October 2025 to March 2026

A RECORD-BREAKING SIX MONTHS

From launch in October 2025, the Creche Initiative built its team and systems, won community-approved spaces in all 20 planned villages, and opened its first five Shishu Ghar centres, all within six months.

20 Villages with community-confirmed creche spaces	5 Shishu Ghar centres inaugurated and operational	5 More centres ready to open after caregiver training
334 Eligible children identified through household listing in 15 villages	50+ Villages reached across 7 Gram Panchayats	1,248 Participants in Gram Sabhas and community meetings, 75% of them women

In collaboration with Azim Premji Philanthropic Initiatives Private Limited (commonly known as Azim Premji Foundation), CKN launched the Creche Initiative, locally called Shishu Ghar, to provide a safe, nurturing and developmentally stimulating environment for children aged 7 months to 3 years in tribal villages. The grant runs from October 2025 to September 2028, and the first six months laid a strong foundation for scale.

In most rural households in Simdega, mothers work as daily wage earners, in farming, or in the unorganised sector, often leaving young children at home in unsafe conditions or bringing them to workplaces where they face risk. The first 1,000 days of life are critical for physical, cognitive and emotional development, and a lack of adequate nutrition, care and early learning in this period can have lasting consequences. Each Shishu Ghar offers a secure, child-friendly space, three nutritious meals a day with good hygiene, and frees mothers to take up livelihood activities.

Team, Training and Systems

The project team was constituted in October 2025, with a Programme Manager, Cluster Coordinator, Accounts and Logistics Manager, MIS personnel and Supervisors. A one-day induction covered CKN's values, child protection, women's safety and organisational ethics. A five-day caregivers' training was held from 19 to 23 January 2026 at Tirkey Garden, using exposure visits, group discussions, demonstrations, role plays, songs, games and safety sessions. An MIS orientation trained the team on household listing, moving children from eligible to enrolled status, and recording anthropometric data on the Shishu Ghar App, and the project office was fully set up.

Caregivers' training, January 2026

Induction of the creche team

Community Ownership

Awareness about Shishu Ghar was built through 13 Gram Sabhas (1,074 participants: 244 men and 830 women) and 4 community meetings (174 participants: 65 men and 109 women), with active involvement of Mukhiyas, Gram Pradhans, Ward Members and Sahiyas. Caregivers were selected transparently through Gram Sabhas, and community members helped identify and prepare spaces for the centres. Parents, especially mothers, have said they can now go to work without worrying about their children's safety.

Centres Opened

Five Shishu Ghars are operational: Phulwartangar, Bherikudar, Sembi Toli, Kochedega and Darji Mohalla. Enrolment for all five is recorded on the Shishu Ghar App. Five more centres are ready to open once caregiver training is complete, seven are in preparation and three are still in the Gram Sabha and household listing stage. The team expects all 20 planned centres to be operational shortly.

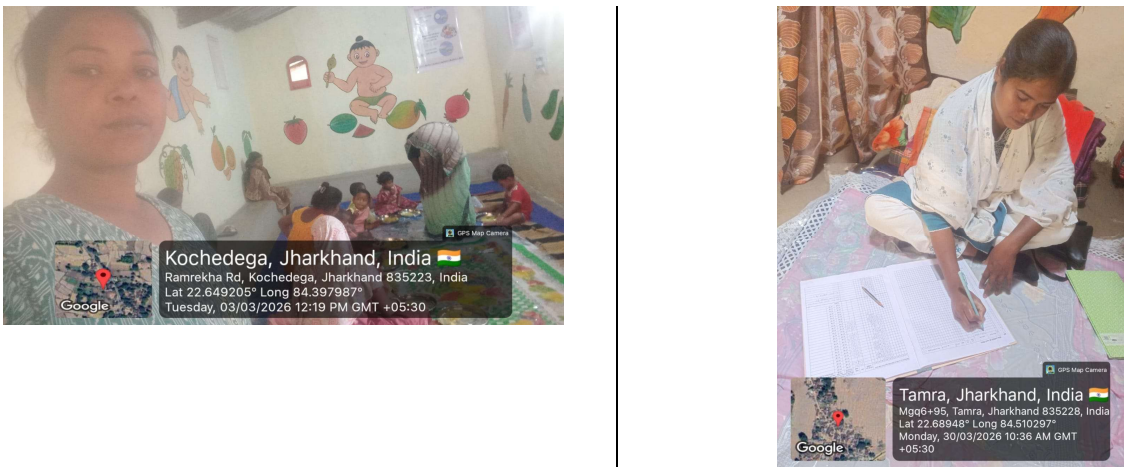

Phulwartangar and Sembi Toli centre launches

Community at the Kochedega centre

Tracking and Verification

Progress is verified through attendance and food registers, photographic evidence, the Shishu Ghar App (attendance, growth data matched with the child card, and safety checklists), regular centre visits, cross-checks between registers, app data and field observation, and continuous review by supervisors.

Field monitoring visits at Kochedega and Tamra

Early Change in a Child's Life

At the Kochedega centre, a young child was admitted severely underweight and undernourished, and unable to walk because of delayed development. With regular attendance, proper nutrition, a safe environment and attentive care from the caregivers, the child's weight rose from 9.29 kg to 9.69 kg and the child has started walking.

Challenges and Next Steps

- Villages near the block headquarters are scattered and house rents are high, so finding suitable spaces within the approved rent of Rs 1,500 was difficult, especially in Garja.
- Many available houses lacked basic facilities such as toilets, which community support helped to resolve.
- Paddy sowing, harvesting and the Mahua season affect community availability and children's attendance.

Next, CKN will make all 20 Shishu Ghars operational, improve regular attendance after the Mahua season, ensure every enrolled child receives safe care and adequate nutrition, continue caregiver training and supportive supervision, and involve Creche Management Committee members in monitoring the centres.

Beneficiary Story

A Success Story in the Prevention of Child Marriage

District: Simdega · Block: Bansjor · Panchayat: Kombakera · Village: Bhanwarchaba

Anjali Samad, 16, lives in Bhanwarchaba village in the Kombakera Panchayat of Bansjor block, a remote corner of Simdega district. The brightest student in her eighth-grade class at the government school in Kombakera, Anjali hoped to continue her education, earn a degree in Simdega city, and bring honour to her village.

Anjali's parents, Sushil and Hiramuni Samad, struggled financially. Her father, unable to read or write, battled alcohol addiction, which deepened the family's hardship. It was her mother who supported the household through forest produce and daily labour. Anjali also has a younger sister, who studies at the same government school.

Her father would often return home intoxicated, harass the family, and demand money from his wife to buy alcohol; when she refused, he would turn violent. Anjali and her sister witnessed this repeatedly and spoke out against it, but their father, consumed by addiction, would recognise no one in those moments. As the violence continued, Anjali's mother sent her to live with an aunt in a nearby village so she could stay safe and continue school, and for a time Anjali commuted from her aunt's home.

During this period, a boy from the village began pursuing Anjali with a proposal of marriage. She refused and firmly opposed him, but he persisted, and out of fear she said nothing to her family. His family, who were financially well-off, eventually visited Anjali's home and formally proposed the marriage. Her mother initially refused, explaining that Anjali was still a minor and below the legal age for marriage. But the boy's family offered money to her father, and given his addiction, he accepted, arranging the marriage and persuading his wife to agree.

When Anjali was told of the plan, she was in tears and pleaded that she did not want to marry, that she wanted to continue her studies and pursue her goals. Her mother, caught between social pressure and her own helplessness, could not act on Anjali's behalf. As wedding preparations began, Anjali grew increasingly withdrawn and stopped attending school.

Anjali's teachers, aware that CKN staff were active in the area, alerted them to what she was facing. Accompanied by her teachers, CKN staff visited the family and explained that child marriage is a legal offence that could seriously harm Anjali's future, while continuing her education could bring pride to the family given her ability as a student. After sustained conversation, her father recognised his mistake, called off the marriage, and agreed to send Anjali back to school.

Anjali has since applied herself to her studies and now ranks first in her class. She encourages other girls in her village to pursue an education, speaks out against child marriage, and shares a simple message: dreams should not be limited by age or tradition, and one decision made at the right moment can transform a life.
